Collaboration between States and Provinces in organisation of State Air Raid Precautions.

SIR,

I am directed to say that it has been suggested that a measure of collaboration between States and neighbouring British Indian Provinces would be useful in the organisation of State Air Raid Precautions, and the Government of India have invited detailed suggestions as to the particular matters on which such collaboration would be appreciated.

2. The Government of India add that experience in British India has shown the impracticability of any pooling of resources in personnel and equipment between neighbouring towns and that it appears to them that collaboration could more usefully be limited to such matters as the training of personnel or joint planning for the control of refugees etc. The position with regard to Bangalore City and the Civil and Military Station is, of course, owing to their close proximity, quite different and the Hon'ble the Resident considers that there is scope and indeed necessity for collaboration on all matters relating to A.R.P. between these two areas.

3. Although there is already fairly close collaboration between the two areas in A.R.P. matters, I am to request that th
